See an obituary notice in "The Christian Advocate," of New York City, p. 407, June 23, 1887:

> CODDINGTON.—David Coddington was born in Mount Horeb, N. J., Nov. 30, 1797. In his 20th year he was converted while praying alone in a barn. He immediately joined the Methodist Episcopal church. His piety and zeal with his natural gifts led the church to place him in nearly all the lay positions, and he filled them well. For the last fifty years he was a licensed exhorter. In his earlier days his house was a preacher's home, and he went far and near to labor in camp-meetings and revival services. His piety was so deep and consistent, as well as so bright and cheerful, that he had the confidence and love of all who knew him. He became a resident of Orange 34 years ago. While health permitted he was always present in the means of grace and efficient in Christian work. And when his failing powers confined him to his house his spirit and utterances made it a Bethel. On April 3, 1887, he rejoined his companion who three years before entered the rest that remaineth.—W. TUNISON.

field, becoming one of the leaders of the Union County bar. For several years he was in partnership with John H. Jackson, the successor of the firm of Suydam and Jackson, and since Mr. Jackson's death in 1894 he has practiced alone. He is therefore the successor of his legal preceptors, who for many years were eminent lawyers in that part of the state. Mr. Coddington was City Judge of Plainfield from 1889 to 1893, and since then has served as attorney for Union County. He was counsel for the executors in the noted Lee will case and in many other important litigations; is counsel for several municipal and other corporations, and is chairman of the Plainfield City Executive Republican Committee. In 1895 and again in 1896 he was elected to the New Jersey Assembly, where he was twice a member of the Judiciary Committee, and, during the session of 1897, chairman of the Committee on Elections. For about ten years he has been a director of the American Mutual Insurance Company of Plainfield. He is also a director of the First National Bank of that city; one of the board of managers of the Plainfield Board of Trade; a director, the counsel, and one of the organizers of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association; and a trustee of the First M.
